Camps Urged At Richmond For Underprivileged Children

ENQUIRER BUREAU SPECIAL DISPATCH.

Richmond, Ind., July 12—Camps for underprivileged Richmond children, whose parents are unable to afford to send them to Scout or YMCA camps, were advocated today by Milton Hadley of Quaker Hill.

Hadley, who formerly was connected with White's Institute, Friends school for children in broken homes and delinquent children, pointed out that Richmond County Department of Public Welfare. He said the department last month was caring for 350 boys and girls.

Hadley told of a boy six years old living near Richmond who is locked out of his home five hours a day because both his parents are at work and do not want him in the house.

He suggested that Richmond industries should refuse to hire women with children under 14 years old unless the employers are
