

The General Government.

Of the written Constitution of the United States, we hope we shall not be accused of extravagance when we most solemnly declare that we have not a sufficient knowledge of the English language to fully express our admiration of this stupendous monument of human wisdom. It is the blessed fruit of much blood and treasure freely exhausted by a young, yet gallant people through the perils and privations of years of war with the most powerful nation on earth. It is the kernel, the core of virtue, valor, and wisdom—the fairest, the purest orbation ever offered on the altar of Freedom; prepared as it was, by the most virtuous sages, and consecrated as it is, by the blood of the bravest heroes that the world ever saw. Its genius is so broad, so comprehensive, so embracing the whole human race, and so harnessed with the power of the highest degree of scientific and moral perfection of which man is capable of attaining on earth. Already, in its infancy, during the last fifty years, under its ample wings, the oppressed of all nations have sought and found happiness and protection. Our present state of suffering prospects, seem to glow with the future promise of a glorious destiny.

Religion, the best gift of God to man, that etherealizes the dust atoms of our material existence, under the genius of this Government, regains that state of pristine purity in which it was placed in celestial simplicity by the Apostles and their immediate successors. Surely no reflecting and unbiased reader of ecclesiastical history will pretend to say that Christianity was as it ought to be from the time of its connection with temporal power in the days of Constantine the Great, to the time of the Reformation; and although much civil and religious light was diffused by their collisions, yet, candor must confess that their motives were not always pure, and, notwithstanding all their austerity, energy and zeal, they too easily embraced the worldly errors they condemned in the Papal power of Rome; and their actions were too often influenced by the grossest passions of humanity. Christianity, connected with politics, power can never be pure, its proper business is not of this world or its little concerns. Look at England; see her priesthood of the ascendancy wallowing in wealth and power, squeezed from the poverty of a starving people they never serve, and whom they abhor and condemn. Look at Spain; see the crimes of her priesthood, look at the calumnies of Europe in all the colonies of war, famine and discord. Look at France; see her priests for a long time, giving civilization and law to the world, and now, in the midst of anarchy, and the most unchristian and unbecoming, unbecoming and growing under the weight of an ecclesiastical despotism. Turn, quickly turn, from these disgusting scenes; look at our own happy land; view our own priest-hood from the extremities of the Union; traveling with healing on their wings, with neither gold, silver, nor brass, nor purple, for their journey, freely giving what they have freely received, like good workers, reaping the seed which they have sown, and, in the midst of a world of unbelief, and a people of unbelief, we speak of no particular sect, but taken altogether of every denomination, we believe the great body of Christian teachers in the United States form the purest body of men on earth. This, under Heaven, is one of the best effects of the genius of our happy government. Under the protection of the genius of our government, where there is nothing to fear, and every thing to hope; where there is no temporal temptations to twist themselves into the disposition of our spiritual teachers, we are, as we think we are, happy day, not in distant perspective, without indulging any unreasonable enthusiasm, when bigotry, superstition, intolerance, empty useless forms, controversial theology, sectarian pride and envy will dissipate, like the morning mist, before the pure and simple light of the gospel, when every genuine friend to civil and religious freedom will join in one common bond of Apostolic charity, exercising the duty of worship, and drawing their faith from the same pure fountain of regeneration. In all human probability, the promised millennium must come under a government where the human mind is left free; it will concentrate in one simple point of truth, and until the professors of Christianity agree to unite, they will inevitably protract the coming of the Redeemer's Kingdom on earth.

Nervous be the arm, and bounties be the hand who would willfully and corruptly impair any of its powers.

Newspapers.

"Intelligence is the life of Liberty." An American and not take a paper, we should respect him more, and pity him less, if we saw him with a newspaper, although destitute of a coat or breakfast. What could be a more noble spectacle than a freeman, who would sooner deprive himself of those articles which we call necessities, than to remain ignorant of the world's history in this wonderful age. On the other hand, what is a soldier and base than to throw away on useless indulgence, the precious minutes of a day, and for the want of one, remain unqualified for the discharge of public duties.

The history of the past age is useful, but the history of the present is indispensable. Men who undertake to stir without it will grope in thick darkness; and will be unable to judge with accuracy of public affairs, and will be responsible to their families, their country, and their God, for their failure to acquire knowledge.

The history of our own times is a matter of peculiar concern to us, because it is the age of astonishing changes; changes, too, that effect our dearest hopes. But the history of the present times concerns us more especially because these times are our own.

But who is so foolish as to think of none but himself? Who will not have an eye to the intelligence of those about him? Who will not regard the innocence, peace and order of the state of society, which comes from disseminating knowledge; and that cheapest and most general diffusion of knowledge, is the circulation of newspapers? Ah! do reflect, accordingly, how important a auxiliary of virtue it may become?

Again we ask, who will not take a little pains, or exert a little influence to qualify men for the exercise of their rights? Who will not sit in the do something to strengthen the barrier, which freedom has thrown up in the western world against the ravages of Despotism.

But, above all, who is there who can bear to send his offspring upon the world, unfitted to take an active part in it, and limited in the power of being useful to themselves or others? The young of either sex who are ignorant of their times, small in count as in competition with others. Small in count as in competition with others. Small in count as in competition with others.

American Pioneer.

The October number of this work is now before us, and it is a highly entertaining one, containing much original matter of Western interest and Western things. The Editor, J. S. Whitman, Esq., has removed to Cincinnati, where he requests all communications and letters to be addressed. This is a work of that character that should receive universal support from the Western people, and the price is so low, only five dollars, that every one can take it without feeling it. Contains our O. C. No. 1—Frontiers, Ancient Writings and Mounds at Marietta, Ohio—Fortifications at Marietta—Ancient Mound at Marietta—Biographical Sketch of Isaac Williams—The Battle of the Clouds—The Campaign in Virginia—Toleration—Post-office Facilities.

Dear and Dumb.

A friend of ours some time since handed us a scrap of an old news paper, newly worn out, from which, with difficulty we extracted the following interesting notice of an examination held at the Deaf and Dumb Institution in London, of the children in their knowledge of Divine truth. "A little boy was asked in writing, 'Who made the world?' 'He took up the chalk, and wrote under the question.' 'In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.' 'The clergymen then inquired in a similar manner, 'Why did Jesus Christ come into the world?' 'A smile of delight and gratitude rested on the countenance of the little fellow, as he wrote, 'This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Jesus came into the world to save sinners.'"

A third was then proposed, evidently adapted to call his most powerful feelings into exercise; "Why were you born deaf and dumb, when I can hear and speak?"

"Never," said an eye witness, "shall I forget the look of resignation which sat on his countenance, as he took up the chalk again to write, 'Even so Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight.'"

Correspondence of the Baltimore Patriot.

New York, Sept. 28.

John C. Calhoun, heretofore known in London, the murder of Samuel Adams, was sentenced this morning on the 18th of November. The case is called upon the Court of Errors. Justice Wiley, who was convicted of receiving stolen money, knowing it to be stolen, was also sentenced to six months imprisonment in the county jail, and to a fine of $300.

John Adams was arrested this morning for embezzling the funds of the corporation. He has held the office of Mayor's Clerk for great number of years, during which, by a uniform system of falsification, he has defrauded the city of, as is supposed, $100,000.

For the Licking Valley Register.

To Physicians.

A meeting of Physicians has been called, and is expected to convene at Covington, on the 14th and 15th instant. The Medical men of North Kentucky have been apprised of it, and it is expected, knowing the object of the meeting, that they will not neglect to come to it, and that they will unite in delivering a united testimony, and, in brotherly communion, to adopt some measures by which the profession will be dignified, and rendered more respectable in the eyes of the public. The Physician who reflects, cannot but know that there is something to be done, to elevate his profession; and with such knowledge no Physician can, with a clear conscience, remain inactive. We say to the profession generally, meet us here, and let us see what can be done.

It is understood that the meeting will be held in the Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. Harrison, and others, will deliver addresses. The citizens generally, are respectfully invited to attend.

COVINGTON.

Covington, Oct. 4, 1842.

Democratic Meeting.

At a large and respectable meeting of the Democrats of Covington, held in the Market House, Saturday evening, Oct. 4, Major John Cox was elected Moderator. The Chairman was appointed, Secretary. The Chairman having explained the object of the meeting, on motion of G. W. Cutler it was unanimously Resolved, That a committee of twelve be appointed to draft a preamble and resolutions, expressive of the principles of the Democratic party, and report the same to a meeting to be held at the Market House, Friday evening next.

Whereupon, G. W. Cutler, H. J. Greenbeck, J. Phelps, Robert Wallace, Wm. B. Hot, T. W. Stevenson, Elmer Williams, C. B. Bennis, J. J. Hathaway, J. Colvin, and C. A. Littlefield were appointed said Committee. After which the meeting was addressed by Messrs. Cutler, Stevenson, Greenbeck and Phelps. On motion, it was Resolved, That the Chairman and Secretary sign the minutes of this meeting, and request the Editor of the Licking Valley Register to publish the same in his paper, of the 8th instant.

When, upon motion, the meeting adjourned to meet again at the same place, on Friday evening next.

JOHN COVING, Chairman.

Mr. Dickens.

The Editor of the Knickerbocker Magazine, has received a letter from Mr. Dickens, by the Great Western, in which he declares a letter abusive of the Americans, attributed to him, and purporting to have been taken from the London Morning Chronicle, to be a forgery. Mr. Dickens has written no letters relating to this country, save the circular on the copy-right question. This, by the way, was quite enough.

The new work by this gentleman, entitled, "American Notes for General Circulation," will be issued early in November, by Lea and Blanchard, in one volume. It tells all that he thought, we anticipate a rich country.

A Quick Snap-Track.—The Lexington Intelligencer, of the 17th ult. says:

"One of the ablest tricks which we have ever heard of was practiced upon a gentleman of this city, on Saturday last, in the Northern Bank. He was standing at the counter, conversing with one of the clerks, with his bank-book in his hand, and a check for two hundred dollars in his pocket. While thus conversing, a young man, dressed in a suit of black, and with a gentlemanly appearance, slipped it from the clerk, unperceived by the owner, presented it at the counter, had it cashed, and left the Bank without being detected. Shortly after, the gentleman to whom the check belonged, missed it, and requested the teller to stop its payment; his astonishment may be conjectured. 'How told it had already been paid?' 'No clue was furnished to the detection of the audacious criminal.'" shall the Wicked bear rule.

We shall be one of the most encouraging signs of the times, that the public attention is turning to the great necessity of securing moral men as candidates for political office. The press, both religious and secular, is more awake to the subject, the pulpit is speaking, and if the present competitive quiet in the political world were embraced by those who have facilities of reaching the minds of men, to urge the great duties of Christian citizens, we would expect permanent and extensive results for good.

Let us again direct our desire to see a third party. That scheme has always failed and will fail. Good men and great men are not to be had. Good men and great men are not to be had. Good men and great men are not to be had.

parties on other than the political principles that divide the country, and have found difficulties in the way of success insurmountable. All we ask in order to effect a moral revolution in politics, is that the moral portion of our fellow citizens will arouse their determination to vote for no man, for any office whatever, who is not a man of moral attainments.

In union there is strength. And if the doctrine we have advanced on this question is sound, let the people act upon it. We are gratified to know that so many of our fellow citizens respond so heartily to the sentiments, and we are encouraged to believe that the issue of this discussion will be for the welfare of the country.

Who does not blush when heretics that a man, but lately a Legislator in the Congress of the United States, is now a condemned felon in the prison of St. James?

"When the righteous are in authority the people are happy; but when the wicked bear rule, the people mourn." Prov. xix. 2. If the people do not mourn when the wicked are in power, it is because the people have become also corrupt. Virtue is still in the ascendancy among the sons of the pilgrims; if principle is stronger than party and patriotism more than a name, the Christian people of this country will set up on the altars of justice, and restore the rule of purity and rectitude in the East.

We copy the above from the New York Observer, one of the most extensively circulated religious papers in the Union. We respond to it with our whole heart, and are ready and willing to exert what influence we may possess, to impress the importance of electing men, both moral and religious men to office, on the minds of the American People. We firmly believe that our country can never be permanently prosperous and happy unless we restore the reign of purity and order. Wicked parties, and wicked and profane rulers, must inevitably incur the displeasure and wrath of that benign Providence who so signally favored our beloved country in the dark days of the revolution.—Mediator.

The MANUFACTURE OF SCREWS has become an important and profitable branch of American industry. The N. E. Screw Company at Providence has a capital of $150,000 invested in the business. A patent for the machinery used has been taken out in England. Two thousand sets of Screws are finished daily, giving employment to 500, men, female, and 50 boys, whose daily wages amount to over $200. Notwithstanding the immense quantity of Screws manufactured at this concern daily, yet $129,000 worth are imported into this country every year. The establishments here use 600 tons of American refined iron rod a year, worth $130 a ton; 750 tons Pennsylvania coal; $1,000 worth of wrapping paper; all the material of $150,000 worth of American, with the exception of 300 carboys of sulphuric acid. The tariff of 1828, when there were no establishments in this country, placed a duty of 40 per cent on the article. The agent says they can sustain themselves with a protection of 30 per cent. Men's wages here, $1 a day. Same business in England, wages 25c. a day. Girls earn from $3 to 4 a week. In England 80 cents. Daily wages here, 25c. Boston Daily American.

The Manufacture of Buttons is getting to be a great business in the United States—the imports of the article amounting last year to half a million of dollars. This branch of home labor has been commenced but recently in this country. The principal establishment is that of the Messrs. Richards at Allegheny, in this State. The button-making business among us has now reached the available sum of $1,500,000 annually, and the capital invested is $1,000,000, giving direct employment to 2580 persons. Of cost of paper, printing and twine to the various establishments which have sprung up is $25,000 annually. The oldest member of the firm at Allegheny has been abroad for the purpose of examining the various modes of manufacturing the article. From the drafts of the machinery taken in his tour, which has been added Yankee ingenuity, he has now got his work complete, and makes a better button than is sent from Europe. Thirty per cent, will protect the American manufacturer.—Boston Daily American.

The New York Express says.—The credit of the Government has been greatly improved since the passage of the Revenue bill, and to the extent of carrying the stock of the Government from 97 to 100 per cent. The bill, which is now in the hands of the Senate, will, it is believed, secure the passage of the Revenue bill, needs no comment, nor is it an isolated case. All descriptions of stock have advanced in value, and the market is well as all branches of business. Its moral effect upon the spirit of the people, is like gold in their pocket.

DIED.—In Charlottesville, Va., on Friday, the 23d September, Mrs. ELIZABETH LOAN, aged 58 years.

On the morning of her death she was perfectly well, and while engaged in her usual domestic duties, she suddenly complained of a sudden pain in her breast, retired to her chamber, and in one hour afterwards breathed her last, thus terminating a life, the necessity of being prepared for death. The deceased was a member of the Presbyterian Church, with which she had been connected twenty-five years, and her life was a beautiful exemplification of the true Christian character. All who knew her, loved her, and while her friends and relatives deeply mourn her loss, she is at the same time a source of comfort and hope, but she is cheered with the full assurance that she has entered into that rest which is the reward for the people of God.
