Bunker Hill Celebration.

We have occupied a considerable portion of our paper-day with the proceedings of Bunker Hill celebration. Mr. Webster's speech on our first day will be read with a deep and abiding interest by every American.

This monument, it will be recollect, was commenced in 1826, and completed in 1843, at a cost of $10,000. It is a renowned worthy of a great nation.

Masonic Address.

Gov. Mooneyan left home on Monday, before he had time to prepare his address, delivered on the Anniversary of St. John the Baptist, at Covington, where the public exercises of the day, closed with a short oration, with the benediction, closed the public exercises of the day. The procession was again formed and marched to the Covington Hotel; where this portion of an excellent dinner prepared by our worthy landlord L. C. Banks.

Covington Lodge, No. 102, met in the evening, and passed resolutions of thanks to our respected visiting brethren generally, more particularly to the Lodge of Cincinnati, to whom we were greatly indebted for their able assistance, and for their most excellent music so highly necessary on occasions of this kind. Indeed, Covington Lodge, "Lois' easiest," highly appreciates the friendly feelings ever manifested by our Cincinnati brethren.

A vote of thanks was also passed to the Disciples of the Presbyterian Church, for the obliging manner they granted the privilege of the Grand Lodge to meet in it on that day.

Covington Lodge would also return their unfeigned thanks to M. W. HENRY WINGATE, G. Master of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, for his able and dignified manner he discharged his arduous duties on the occasion. We feel the increased value of his services when we take into consideration the exalted character and private worth of this gentleman, his high standing in his church, and general respectability. When such men as Mr. WINGATE, and many more of high standing and reputation, both as members of the church and community, taking, as they do, a deep interest in the sciences of Free Masonry, and participating in its public ceremonies, the faithful, surely it should sustain the aim of his intended persecutions, and remove prejudices which may have been imbibed by others less honest.

Saturday was a day of rest for Covington;—it was still a prudier day for Masons;—or we will venture to say, that neither in this, nor in any other country, has there ever been congregated a greater number of Masons, embracing more moral worth, or of higher respectability of character, in the procession. And, though some of them occupying high stations and offices in the community, Minister of the Gospel and worthy members of different churches.—May the right light shine in the dark places; and dispel the mists of ignorance and superstition.

Present in attendance, the several Subordinate Lodges, in the vicinity, the respective Lodges and other Masonic bodies from Clackamas and its neighborhood.

The Grand Lodge was opened in ample form, after an appropriate prayer by the Grand Chapter.

The presbyterian numbering over three hundred Masons chanted in the various insignia of the fraternity, was then convened in regular order by the Grand Marshal. On leaving the church, it was joined by the City authorities, Clergy, Vestry of Trinity Church and citizens, passing through the principal streets it proceeded to the public square, where placing under a triumphal arch, the occasion surrounded the entire foundation of the building. The Grand Officers, Grand Chaplain, Grand Orator, and Architect, ascended the platform, elevated for their reception, the following hymn, selected for the occasion, was then sung:

UNTO THEE, Great God, belong,
My rights and sacred song;

We fall thy Mighty empire;

Glories Ascentur, above, Sources of Light and source of Love,

Men Thy hand didst create,

AMIGHTY MASTER, Hail!!

While in yonder regions bright,

The Son by Day—the Moon by Night;

And the stars by night thy eye;

The sun thy smile, the earth thy balm;

Earth, air, and water, all thy will;

Sorrow—comfort—hunger—bread—

Strangers there, a welcome shed.

Still to us, oh God, dispense;

Thine benignity toow;

Teach the tender heart to bow;

Teach the bold heart to yield;

Teach the weak heart to stand;

Teach the weary heart to rest;

Teach the sad heart to sing;

Teach the lonely heart to find

Its solace in thy presence.

The Box of Deposits was then sealed up and placed in the stone by the Grand Treasurer and Grand Secretary, the Grand Master accompanied by the Deputy Grand Master, Senior, and Junior Grand Wardens, bearing the vessels of Corn, Wine and Oil, thus proceeded to adjust the stones to its proper place. An appropriate and eloquent prayer was then offered up to the Supreme Grand Architect of the Universe, by the Grand Chaplain. Dr. J. S. Foster, of the Building Committee, (representing the Architect,) presented the Plumb, Square and Level, accompanied with an appropriate address. The Grand Orator then addressed the various concourses of spectators that had congregated to witness the interesting operations of the day.

The processus was again brought into line of march, and proceeded to the foundation of Trinity Church, on Madison street; where the usual exercises of laying the corner stone were performed, preceded by an address by J. L. Newell, Esq., after which a sacred hymn, and an impulsive prayer by the Grand Chaplain. Solemn singing an ode, with the benediction, closed the public exercises of the day. The processus was again formed and marched to the Covington Hotel; where this portion of an excellent dinner prepared by our worthy landlord L. C. Banks.

*Address of J. L. Newby, Esq.,
On laying the Corner Stone of Trinity Church.*

In the history of the associations their public offices have always been a subject of interest, and a study to the historian and the biographer. Many of them have survived the shock of conquest and of time; and from them we form our idea of the progress of science, with the one exception that they have not been preserved in their original state. Those who have clung to them are interesting associations connected with them—they were reared upon classic ground.

The hapless governments are those whose fundamental laws have for their basis, religion and superstition; while those which are based upon the spirit of liberty, of equality, of benevolence, philanthropists, anxiety, confusion and tyranny, are the ultimate and legitimate consequences. Man has much to do to fulfil the objects of his creation. Being the work of God, he must be made to conform to the will of God, and will be well rewarded for it.

How far governments act upon these great principles, the measure of morality, religion and superstition, will determine their fate, and the extent to which they will be successful.

Wherever England sends forth her hosts, or her trade is passing, the Arts and Sciences follow, and the people who are more or less plunged in the depths of ignorance and barbarism, are exposed to the depths of degradation.

Heavens! how ignorant are they!

in the pantheon of hereditary mythology—wa are witnesses of the one true God, with his revealed Word—“I am.”

We are not creating a vast theatre for royal amusements, to palliate the vices of society with exhibitions of foul fight, or human gladiators butchered to make a Roman holiday; but we are creating a vast amphitheatre, to be filled by the voice of a few people, to be devoted for all time to the several publics over which our growing City in her corporate capacity may require, with size and proportion adapted to the growth of our city.

The importance and general advantage of a temple to the Deity, is not to be denied; but surely I need no detail. Were this an arbitrary Government, where the lot is cast upon us mad to command, and upon all the rest to obey—were we living under a military despot, who, like the King of Persia, “had a thousand counsels, and none of them good,” we should be compelled to submit to his commands.

PRUDENCE AND ECONOMY.—What if you have a patch on your knee?—it is nothing to be ashamed of. The King of Persia, who had a very large knee, was not ashamed of it. The Jews, that they had wronged him, were not afraid to meet him. The King of Persia, “had a thousand counsels, and none of them good.”
