

CONGRESSIONAL

January 3, 1864.
The Senate did not sit this day.
A memorial was read from the Chamber Commerce of New York, asking the establishment of a warehousing system.
Mr. U. J. Ingels moved to go into the committees of the whole, for the purpose of resuming the consideration of the bill to refund Gen.
Jackson's fee.

Mr. Hunt, of N. Y., followed at considerable length, in a review of the speeches of gentlemen who have addressed the Convention, calling for Mr. Stewart, in explanation of his proposition to the West, to help the South to repel the tariff, and in turn the South would help them in the improvement of their rivers.

Mr. H.'s explanation did not much alter the main question.

Mr. Hunt declared as his opinion that no portion of the people of this country were ready

A Midnight Appeal.
 "We were awakened out of our sleep on Sunday night about 11 o'clock by the rapping of a box of about ten pounds, we rose and went to window and asked him what he wanted. He told us where he would like a workman to do as you want, with a watchman I asked him if he was a man after house, he replied and motioned for him to go in. He said he was a man of good of him. Who is the man, and what is he doing to your mother, we asked. After a good

MEMORIAL
THURSDAY, JAN. 2, 1944
STATE
 The memorial for the victims of the massacre at the Los Angeles Japanese American Relocation Authority was held at the Los Angeles Convention Center. The memorial was held in the presence of a large number of guests, including the Mayor of Los Angeles, the Governor of California, and the President of the United States. The memorial was a moving and inspiring event, and it was a great honor to have the President of the United States in attendance. The memorial was a testament to the courage and resilience of the Japanese American people, and it was a reminder of the importance of civil liberties and the rights of all citizens.

mode of instruction in elementary schools. He said, "Government should encourage the children between five years old to commence studies which are useful, healthy, and learn very much over a short period of time. It is certain that they can do so in their common schools. However, various other methods of instruction are possible."
