Clay and Freilinghuysen.

F. GERTER, —Alt.—"Old Dan Turker."
The akies are bright, our hearts are light,
for Baltimore the Whige maite;
We'll set our cough to good old tunes,
For there is mulic in these "coose!"
Hursal hursal the country' risin'
Fee Harry Glay and Freilinghuysen.

or starry Glay and Freiinghuysen.

The Loco's hearts are very sore.

Though very scarte in Battimore,
For they begin to see with reason,
That this will be a great coon season.

Hurraph hurrab! &c.

O! Frelinghuysen's Jersey Blue,
A noble Whig and honest too,
And he will make New Jersey feel,
Whige, pay respect to her "Broad Seal."
Heirrah! hurrah! &c.

Hurrahl hurrah! &c.

Now let the Locos speak in candor,

His fame, e'en Kendall dare not slander,

And when we all get in the fight,

Lord, how the Jersey coons will bite.

Hurrah! hurrah, &c.

Oh! Matty Van's a man of sloubt. Who wires in, and wires out, You cannot tell when on the track, he's going on, or coming back.

Hurrah! hurrah! &c.
The coon now looks around with pride,
For who is here dier touch his hide!
And the' the Lecos think to cross him,
They'l find he's only playing 'possum.
Hurrah! hurrah! &c.

United heart and hand are we, United heart and hand are we, From northern Lake to southern Sea; From East to West, the country's risin, For Harry Clay and Frelinghuysen. Hurrah! hurrah! the country's risin, For Harry Clay and Frelinghuysen.

Know ye not that ye are Men. Know ye not that ye are men, Ye laboring throngs of earth? Must ye be told and told again That Truth and Toll are worth?

Why do ye look upon the ground,
No fire within the eye,
When noble born are all around, And Wealth and Rank go by !

For have ye not a heart within, And sense and soul as they!

And more—have ye not toiled to win

The bread ye eat to day?

Do you despise your sun-burnt hands—
So hard with toil,
That have made fair the forest lands,
And turned the forest soil?

What! do yo fear the haughty gaze

Of men in rich array?
Tis said, pride bath not many days,
And Riches fly away.

Up heart and hand and persevere,
And overcome the scorn—
The haughty hate and heartless sneer
Of this world's gentle born! Fear not—shrink net—to you is given The guardianship of Earth; And on the record-book of Heaven Is writ your honest worth!

Honer yourselves yo honest, true, And willing firm, and strong; Do well whate'er your hands may do, Though praise may linger long!

NEW COUNTERFEIT.

On the Northern Bank of Kentucky. A verwell executed, counterfeit note, of the denounation of $50,000 this week presented at it counter of the Gorington Branch, where it we made payable. The note was dated 1st Nov. 1843, letter F. No. 1229. The end margins 1813, letter F. No. 1229. The end margine were darker and must less distinct than on the musice, analysis of the margine, analysis of the margine, and the music presently extracted in the desirate whigh characterises the granion notes of the new flats. The note was assemblat horter and narrower between the margins, than the issues of the Bank. No striking difference was discovered by which a person and familiar with the plate could readily identified the counterfacilities. The signatures were closely ignitated; the fall

ng up was rather stiff and heavy. PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION
