THE UNLOYED. They told me of her history. Her love Was a neglected fiame that had consumed The altar where it kindled. Oh! how fraught With bitterness, is unrequited love; To know that we have cast life's hope away On a vain shadow !"

Alas! and must I teach this heart, Within its deepest cell,
To hide the thoughts that upward gush, From out its crystal well? And must I feel my hand in thine, And know that thou art near?

And listen to these gentle tones Like music to my ear? Yet feel that I am nought to thee, More than a passing memory And must I smile when I could weep-

The rising sigh suppress? And listen to another's praise. Yet show no bitterness? Ah! must I still this wayward heart Each gentle hope resign, And calmly see another claim The love that should be mine? Yet let no outward feeling show lava flood that rolls below

Be still! Be still! my beating heart; Ye bitter tears away; He ne'er shall know the foolish hope I've cherished to decay. Yet knows the heart no deeper grief, Or life a darker spot,

Than when we feel affection first Is slighted or forgot; That all our fancied hopes of bliss. Rest in oblivion's dark abyss. Alas! Alas! my life has been

A mockery and a shame; My heart has poured its fullness out, And poured it out in vain. And I could scorn my very self-My eyes with tears grow dim, When thinking o'er the weary past, And all I've lost for him Sweet childhood free from harrowing cares. The buried hopes of brighter years. LEON

From the Southern Literary Messenger. THE GIANT OAK. BY J. S. CHADEOURNE.

There on the hill he stood, his verdant head Amid the clouds, his mighty feet among The rocks. When zephyr dallied with his locks How soft his sighs and whispered words of love, How like the roar of human hat the was The noise, when all his branches fought the blast Upon his lofty limbs the engles built Their regal nest, and reared their noble young; And there they screamed unto the rising sun, How towered in glory the Giant Oak .-His dewy leaves bathed in the golden beams, Pouring his hailings to the glowing orb, While yet in gloom and silence slept the vale!

For centuries there the Giant Oak had stood Stars he had seen go out upon the sky, And come not forth again, as from their throne Fell the rebeling angels into night;—
Stars he had seen from chaos-wand rings rise, And join the anthem of the glittering hosts, Like saints from earth to heaven to shine and sing Amid, and o'er the wilderness he towered, When hill, and plain, and dale was wilderness And sylvan generation, 'neath his arms, Had sprouted, grown, and fell. The mod which shone.

Upon the sea, when, from the Pinta's dock, The thrilling cry, "land? land?" rose on th night, on his slumbering leaves her silvery beams.

He saw the storm of Revolution rise, And when its thunders burst at Lexington He clapped, and clapped his myriad hands joy, In the unshackled breeze which kissed the hills

There had he stood, and fought the Norther

blast,—
For centuries had he overcome its rage; The whirlwind, which tore up the aged pines, Had howled among his gnarled limbs in vain.

"Shouts for the brave old Oak!" the veom tried—
"Shouts for the brave old Oak! the warrior Oak The victor of a thousand fields! Unbowed, Verdant and glorious still be towers! And be Shall ever tower and thrive; each year shall bring To him a mightier greatness and more wealth Of shining leaves. Howl on, O northern blast

And burst, ye clouds, with hail and whirlwinds black! Hurl all your fury on the Giant Oak! Still shall his branches hold the engle's nest!"

Alas! alas! O yeoman, there are foes, Undreamed of, or despised, ignoble foes, More mighty than the whirlwind and the blast! And even whilst thou spake, the Giant Oak-The Warrior Oak—was doomed! Ay, even then
The field-mouse and the epicurean worm His autumn wealth had gathered, and had bred Were busy at his roots. And there, unseen, White rolled the years away, they revelled on. Root after root was severed, till his leaves Grew dull and dwarfish, and, at last, yellowed, And died, and came not forth again with Spring And then his branches, one by one, rotted And fell, and from his trunk the bark pealed off. Naked and desolate-swayed by the breeze-The picus thrusting to his heart, for worms, Her greedy beak, -a perch for carrion crows-He stood, till Heaven looked on his blasted form In wrath, and said, "why cumbereth he the ground?"

And her red bolts fell on him from the cloud. MY Country! like the Giant Oak doth tower

Thy glorious strength, verdant, and to the sky! Thou bless'd of Heaven! how hailest thou the day-How shinest in the sun, while yet, in night,

The nations sleep! And thou shalt tower and Triumphant o'er the horeal storms of Time But if Corruption, with her loathsome train Of slimy demagagues and parasites, Gathered, and bred, and nursed, by " Party Spoils,"

Shall fester in thy soil—THEN SHALT THOU DIE! Not as becomes thy greatness, but in shame;-Then shall thy beauty fall, thy strength decay; And thou shalt stand, naked and desolate, And mocked, as stood the Giant Oak, -as stood Old Rome, till Heaven doth rend thee with her

'So you are going to live in the same build ing with Hetty Turnpenny, said Mrs. Lane to Mrs Fairweather, You will find nobody to envy you. If her temper does not prove too much even for your good-nature, it it will surprise all who know her. We lived there a year, and that is as long as anybody ever tried it.'
'Poor Hetty!' replied Mrs. Fairweather,

'She has had much to harden her. Her mother died too early for her to remember; her father was very severe with her; and the only lover she ever had, borrowed the savings of her years of toil, and spent them in dissipation. But Hetty, notwithstanding her sharp features, and sharper words, certainly has a kind heart. In the midst of her greatest poverty many were the stockings she knit, and the warm waistcoasts she made, for the poor drunken lover, whom she had too much good sense to marry.—Then you know she feeds and clothes her brother's orphan child.

'If you call it feeding and clothing, replied Mrs Lane. 'The poor child looks cold, and pinched, and frightened all the time, as if she were chased by the East Wind. I used to tell Miss Turnpenny she ought to be ashamed of herself, to keep the poor little thing at work all the time, without one minute to play. If she does but look at the cat, as it runs by the window, Aunt Hetty gives her a rap over the knuckles. I used to tell her she would make the girl just such another sour old crab as herself.'

'That must have been very improving to her disposition,' replied Mrs. Fairweather, with a good-humored smile 'But in justice to poor Aunt Hetty, you ought to remember that she had just such a cheerless childhood herself. Flowers grow where there is sun-

'I know you think everybody ought to live in the sunshine,' rejoined Mrs. Lane; 'and it must be confessed that you carry it with you wherever you go. If Miss Turnpenny has a heart, I dare say you will find it out, though I never could, and I never heard of any one else that could. All the families within hearing of her tongue call her the neighborin-law.

Certainly the prospect was not very encouraging, for the house Mrs. Fairweather proposed to occupy, was not only under the same roof with Miss Turnpenny, but the buildings had one common yard in the rear, and one common space for a garden in front. The very first day she took possession of her new habitation, she called on the neighborin-law. Aunt Hetty had taken the precaution to extinguish the fire, lest the new neighbor should want hot water, before her there's a pump across the street, I don't like to have my house slopped all over.'

'I am glad you are so tidy, neighbor Turn-I came in merely to say good morning, and to ask if you could spare little Peggy to run up and down stairs for me, while I am getting my furniture in order. I will pay her Aunt Hetty had begun to purse up her month for a refusal: but the promise of sixnence an hour relaxed her features at once. Little Peggy sat knitting a stocking very diligently, with a rod lying on the table beside her. She looked up with timid wistfulness, as if the prospect of any change was like a release from prison. When she heard consent given, a bright color flushed her cheeks. She was evidently of an impressible temperament, for good or evil-Now mind and behave yourself,' said Aunt Hetty; and see that you keep at work the whole time. If I hear one word of complaint, you know what you'll get when you come home.' The rose-color subsided from Peggy's pale face, and she answered, 'Yes ma'm.' very meekly. In the neighbor's house all went quite otherwise. No switch lay on the table, and instead of, 'mind how you do that. If you don't I'll punish you,' she heard the gentle words, There, dear, see how carefully you can carry that up stairs. Why, what a nice handy little girl you are! Under this enlivening influence, Peggy worked like a bee, and soon began to hum much more agreeably than a bee. Aunt Hetty was always in you bring me one of the pies we baked this the habit of saying. Stop your noise and morning? I should like to have Miss Turnthe habit of saying, 'Stop your noise, and mind your work.' But the new friend patted her on the head, and said, 'What pleasant voice the little girl has. It is like the birds in the fields. 'By and by, you shall hear my music box.' This opened wide the windows of the poor little shut-upheart, so that the sunshine could stream in and the birds fly in and out, carolling.—The happy child tuned up like a lark, as she ous household errands. But though she took heed to observe all the directions given her, her head was all the time filled with conjeconly looked very curiously at everything that resembled a box. At last, Mrs. Fairweather said, 'I think your little feet must be tired, by this time. We will restawhile, and eat some gingerbread.' 'I did not think of such thing,' Mrs. Fairweather. 'I called her poor Tab, because Pink plagues her so that she has no peace of her life. I agree with you, neighbor Turnpenny; it is not right to keep a dog that disturbs the neighborhood. I am attached to poor little Pink, because he belongs to my son, who has gone to sea. ed to use turnups instead of the cudgel. When Spring came. Mrs. Fairweather bused herself with planting roses and vines .-Miss Turnpenny readily consented that Peggy should help her even refused to take any pay from such a good neighbour. But she maintained her own opinion that it was a mere waste of time to cultivate flowers. The cheerful philosopher never disputed the point; but she would sometimes say, 'I have no room to plant this rose bush. Neighbour Turnpenny, would you be willing to let me set it on your side of the yard? It will take very lit-ile room, and will need no care.' At another time she would say, 'Well really my ground is too full. Here is a root of Lady's delight. How bright and pert it looks. It seems a pity to throw it away. If you are willing, I will let Peggy plant it in what she calls her garden. It will grow of itself, without any care, and scatter seeds, that will come up and blossom in all the clinks of the bricks. I love it. It is such a bright goodnatured little thing.' Thus by degrees, the crabbed maiden found herself surrounded by flowers; and she even declared, of her own accord, that they did look pretty.

One day, when Mrs. Lane called upon Mrs. Fairweather, she found the old weed-grown yard bright and blooming. Tab, quite fat and sleek, was asleep in the sunshine, with her paw on Pink's neck, and little Peggy was singing at her work as blithe as a bird. 'How cheerful you look here,' said Mrs Lane. And so you have really taken the house for another year- Pray how do you manage to get on with the neighbor-in-law?

Mr. Polk -Sir Robert Peel -the Oregon Treaty, and the Peace Makers. The following from the Washington letter in the New York Commercial, purports to give the | Committee, addressed Old Rough and Ready as authority for the report about Sir Robert Peel, concerning the Oregon treaty-

"The President said to a Senator, on Wed nesday evening, that Mr. McLane announced in his recent despatches the important fact that the proposition forwarded to Mr. Pakenham, for the settlement of the Oregon question, was agreed to by Her Majesty's Privy Council, by a bare majority of one—Sir Robert Peel being one of the minority."

Upon this, the Bultimore Patriot very justly remarks, that there is probably some mistake shed upon American arms. about the matter; but if is true, this remarka ble state of things will have occurred, where treaty, that secures peace between two great nations, has been made against the wishes and views of the persons for the time being at the head of the two governments! Mr. Polk is known to have been opposed to the Oregon treaty, and in submitting it to the Senate, for their advice, informed them that if left to himself he should reject it. We are now informed, on, it would seem, the authority of Mr. Polk himself, that Sir Robert Peel-who is, for the time being, as much at the head of the government of Great Britain as is Mr. Polk at the head of the Uni ted States-was also opposed to the treaty, and that it was agreed to in the British Ministry against his advice and vote!

A strange state of things, truly, and we doubt whether it has a parallel in the history of modern governments.

If the story be true, to the extent reported, we have in it another evidence of how little the world is indebted to rulers, either for the good enjoyed or the evil avoided To the insane ambition or the weak pride of men highest in authority, may be traced most of the wars that have afflicted mankind; and now again have we only escaped one, which could scarcely have failed citement—thousands awaited the arrival of the to involve many nations in its vortex, by disregarding the promptings of that ambition or the suggestions of that pride.

How much higher the honors, thus won by the distinguished men we have named, and others who took part in the good work, than that which is gained upon the most successful battle field! The laurel, which binds the brows of the warrior, is ever gathered beneath the cypress-the former tells of victory, the latter of death. But officers and men, that she was a brave, a noble here, in the Senate of the United States, was and high-minded State—that chivalry, ardent fought a battle, and a victory achieved, which gives to those who won it a brighter grace and should secure to them a more enduring fame than any whice the trade of arms could bring The truth was announced long ago that,

From the Army.

We have dates from the American Camp in Mexico up to the 13th. Nothing new, at least nothing that looks like fighting.

Col. Wilson with a detachment of regulars and Volunteers, had been sent up to Reinosa. That place he took without opposition. No enemy was seen on his route, and nothing heard of him. On Monday the 8th the Louisiana Legisla-

You were sent to desister State, and to uphold the glory of the American flag on its borders. The news arrived at New Orleans, that the enemy was an proaching with a vastly superior force, and that robably our little army was already cut off and destroyed. Well do I remember what were the feelings of my countrymen at this intelligence— all business ceased, and the Legislature was so aroused as to be able to legislate for nothing but the Army-but even then our State did not despair, no, we well knew what an American Army vas capable of achieving—the glorious deeds American arms in past days were remembered and we felt assured that you would fight for the honor of the National Flag, as long as life remained, and that every man of you would be cold on the bloody field of battle, sooner than the beautiful Star-Spangled Banner should be prostrated before a proud and cruel foe.

We were not mistaken. Great was the ex steamer, and when she hove in sight, there was a dead silence, until the news of the first glorious victory was announced, and then you would have rejoiced if the shouts that rent the air could have reached you—noble huzzas of free-men, glorifying in American courage and papart of our nation, and throughout the lane the hozannas of your countrymen are heardvictorious army, and the notes of victory that resounded on the plains of Palo Alto, and on the esaca de la Palma, will reverberate through Europe and the world. The kind and generous action of the Legislature of Louisiana, will cheer and animate us in firmly sustaining the honor and glory of our beloved flag. In the name of my offi cers and men, I thank you and the brave State that has sent you."

The ceremony over, a dinner followed. From no scarcity of good things, as there was certain ly no lack of fellowship and good will. One describer of the dinner says, significantly, "Our wine was from Arista's stores." That is as Award.—G. R. Sage, 1st Premium; Wm. much as to say, we had the best. Four tables f. Says one writer, "the sunniest wit and purest eloquence followed each other in such rapid succession that I was utterly bewildered, and cannot begin to remember the speeches, or half the good things said by them ."

The same writer-evidently one of the Louisiana committee-visited Palo Alto and Resaca de la Palma. Of these two battle-fields, he speaks as follows:

In the course of my life. I have never seen more charming place than that selected by May for his present encampment. There we rode on the Chapparals of the "Resaca de la Palma," the position taken by the Mexicans on the 9th, with the intention to stop the progress of the American Army. This position is certainly a very strong one, and one which could apparently beheld by any force against ten times its number. Yet our brave fellows not only passed the "Resaca," but in doing so routed nuch more than twice their number, and killed as many Mexicans, as their number consisted of. That's the way they fought. Perhaps nothing of the kind ever equalled it. Cockrane's and Inge's graves were pointed out to me; as also was the spot where May took La Vega by the tive Committee reached General Taylor's Camp, -hand-and that where Ridgely gave the memo rable answer, . Stop Charley, "till I draw fire." Sacket also pointed out to me where he lost his horse, & was also shown where the same gallant fellow, unborsed and unarmed, attacked a Mexican, took his sword from him, and from want of a horse, unable to follow the calvary, he joinep the ranks of a passing body of infantry, and rushed with them on to the charge.

The dead bodies of the battle of the 9th are enerally buried as for as found, but there is little doubt that a very great number lie in the thickets about the ravine. The number of caps and catridge boxes' each of which points out the recent bed of a dead man is great, but we did no: count them. I rode through the camp of Arista and his officers, and had pointed out to me the localities which afforded the best "accomodations for man and beast," of which, as I was told, ample advantage had been taken."

Mr. Clay-Protection.

Mr. Clay, on the 19th of May, 1846, in replying to Mr. E. Rousel, of Philadelphia, speaks olution in favor of Santa Ana. on the subject of protection as he has always spoken. He says:-

The progress of American manufactures, during the last quarter of a century, ought to excite in the heart of every American citizen feelings of patriotic satisfaction. Every which I entertained at the commencement of the policy which fostered them, has been realized and more than realized, and every prediction of the friends of that policy, as to abundance, and cheapness, the effects of competition, and the operation upon the revenue of the General Government, has been fulfilled, and every counter prediction of the foes of the policy has completely feiled. I should, therefore, regard with deep regret the abandonment of a system from which manifold benefits have sprung. Nor ought we, I think, to be seduced into a change of policy by the delusive example of any foreign power. The question of Protection, its degree, and its duration, is a question depending upon the state of circumstances in each particular nation. Some nations, owing to the great perfection their manufactures have attained, may need no protection for them, and others may require more or less, or for a longer or a shocter time. If I were an English subject, I would be in favor of free trade for Great Britain, because the great variety and perfection of her manufactures, and her great advantages in the distribution of them, would enable her to maintain a successful competition in most of the markets in the world When we have acquired more skill, accumulated more capital, and had more to bring our manufactures to maturity and perfection, we shall be better prepared to consider whether we ought to adopt practically the doctrine of Free Trade. n the meantime, it is my firm belief that the destruction of our American Manufactures would ultimately be injurious to Great Britain in the commerce between the two countries, as it would most certainly be highly prejudicial to he United States.

Hoping that we may be preserved from such calamity, and that you and all others engaged n Domestic Industry, in all its branches, may continue to enjoy the protecting care of our ent, I am your friend and obe H. CLAY.

WALKER .-- HE WILL NOT ACCIPT.-The New Haven Register says: "A gentleman from Corpus Christi, who is intimately acquainted with Capt, Walker tells us that he will not accept any post in the army his tact lies in fighting the Mexicans by instinct; and that the cipline of the regular army would destroy his usefulness. As a scout, or skirmisher, he has not a superior; but as a soldier automaton, to be moved by others, perhaps his inferiors in spirit, or knowledge of border warfare, he would never submit to it. He may feel complimented by this act of the Government, but his adventu-rous spirit will never brook the traumels of the egular camp."

From Mexico. We learn by the arrival of the British brig Lady of the Dake, from Bermuda, at New York, that the Royal Mail steamer Pay, from Vera Cruz 2d instant, had arrived here, having on board $2,000,000 in specie and $500,000 in produce The Bermuda Gazette says that the Royal Mail steamer will be allowed to fand mails and passengers at Tampico, but not quicksilver or any kind of merchan-

In Vera Cruz no notice of blockade was given to the foreign Consuls, which had caused great umbrage to the majority of them—but notice was sent to the Captains of all the neutral vesels of war (French, Spanish and English) an chored at Sacrificios. The Commander of the American squadron states that the Royal Mail Steam packets would be allowed to communicate and to land their mails and passengers, and to take specie. The President, Paredes, it was said, was to eave Mexico with 10,000 men for the North, to endeavor to effect some arrangement with the Americans. There was much said about a rev

EXMPR OF LOUIS NAPOLEON.

The following letter from Louis Napoleon to Paris paper, sets forth in a very interesting manner, the particulars of his remarkable escape from the Castle at Ham :-

My Dear M. Degeorge: - My desire to see my ather once more in this world made me attempt the boldest enterprise I ever engaged in. It required more resolution and courage on my part than at Strasburg and Boulogne, for I was de-termined not to submit to the ridicule that attaches to those who are arrested escaping under a disguise, and a failure I could not have endured. The following are the particulars of my

You know that the fort was guarded by men, who furnished daily 60 soldiers, placed as sentries outside the walls. Moreover, the principal gate of the prison was guarded by the gaolers, two of whom were constantly on duty. It was necessary that I should first clude their rigilance, afterwards traverse the inside court before the windows of the commandant's dence; and, arriving there, I should be obliged to pass by a gate which was guarded by soldiers. Not wishing to communicate my design to an one, it was necessary to disguise myself. As several rooms in the part of the building I oc cupied were undergoing repairs, it was not difficult to assume the dress of a workman. My good and faithful valet, Charles Thelin, procured a smock frock and a pair of sabots (wooden shoes,) and after shaving off my mustaches, took a plank on my shoulders.

On Monday morning I saw the workmen en ter at half past $80'clock. Charles took them some drink, in order that I should not meet any of them on my passage. He was also to call one of the gardiens, (turnkeys) whilst Dr. Conneau conversed with the others. Nevertheless, I had scarcely got out of my room, before I was accost ed by a workman, who took me for one of his comrades, and at the bottom of the stairs I found myself in front of the keeper. Fortunately, I placed the plank I was carrying before my face and succeeded in reaching the yard. Whenever I passed a sentinel or any other person, I always kept the plank before my face.

Passing before the first sentine, I let my plank fall, and slopped to pick up the bits. There a letter, he did not pay attention to me. The soldiers at the guard house appeared surprised portant document will relieve our transatlantic at my dress, and a drummer turned round sevriends of considerable anxiety and trouble, and eral times to look at me. I next met some workbe hailed with delight as the harbinger of a new man, who looked very attentively at me. I peared to be so curious that I thought I should never escape them, until I heard them cry, 'Oh!

Once outside, I walked quickly towards the road of St Quentin. Charles, who the day be-fore had engaged a carriage, shortly overtook me, and we arrived at St. Quentin.

I passed through the town on foot, after have ing thrown off my smock frock. Charles procured me post-chase, under prefext of going to We arrived without meeting many obstacles at Valenciennes, where I took the railway. I had procured a Beigian passport but nowhere was I asked to show it. Adieu, my dear M. Degeorge; although I feel myself to be most unhappy. Receive the assurance of my sincere friendship, and, if you are able, en leavour to be useful to my kind Conneau.

[COMMUNICATED.]

MR. Enitor :- Permit me, through your p per, to respectfully enquire the cause o lay in grading and paving that portion of Madison street which is now under improvement. Some ten weeks have now clapsed since the work was commenced, jet nothing has been done sav rendering the street perfectly impassable, and the good citizens of that most travelled and enterprizing portion of the city, have nothing it prospert for the next six months to come, exceppiles of rock, deep mud boles, and an entire obstruction of travel and trade. This may do for some, but it will not for us. Had the work been urried, as it should have been upon this road it being the principal one of travel, it might, ind upon enquiry, have been completed fro Sixth to Washington st., in about six weeks thus opening the avenues of trade and facilita ting travel.

I know not what the good people of this por tion of the city have done that they should b debarred the rights and privileges permitted 1 other portions. If energy, enterprize and an untiring disposition to improve and advance the interests of the city generally, be the cause then we must plead guilty; if not, we look t those who are knowing in these motters to en lighten us, as we are not disposed to remain longer groping in mud and darkness, unless can be plainly demonstrated that it will be to our interest and to the interest of the city in MADISON. general. THE FATAL CONSEQUENCE.

The bills of mortality which we daily see recorded, and the vast number that die of Consumption, and the very many of our friends and ac quaintances who are seriously and dangerously afflicted, and must ere long pay the debt of Nature, is alone sufficient evidence that no time should be lost in getting clear of the very first evil seed of disease as soon as possible, before it takes root and destroys life. Occular demonstrations are daily visible to the public, "DR. DUNCAN'S EXPECTORANT REM are ruptured, to get cured of this affliction, before the bowel or omentum becomes strangulated. Very few persons know the serious and dangerous consequences of a RUPTURE: consequently pay but little attention to it, until the bowel that passes through the orifice of the ruptured part, ecomes the seat of inflammation, at once slopping their circulation and natural evacuations. It is at this critical time that great danger is to be apprehended, and if not immediate relief be afforded to the patient, mortification ensues, and DEATH fast approaching. This is the usual course of these diseases, when neglected and not a suitable in COMMERCIAL INSTITUTE, N. E. Cor-I ner of Vine and Fifth sts., Cincinnati, O. The design of this Institution is to qualify young men in a thorough practical manner, for the Counting House. The Course will embrace Book-keeping by Double Entry, Commercial Calculations, Commercial Letter Writing and Practical Penmanship.

BOOKKEEPING BY DOUBLE ENTRY A complete course of practical Instruction will be given in this Science, embracing ever ent of Trade and Mercantile accounts, viz: Wholesale, Retail, Commission, Exchange. Shipping, Banking, Individual, Partnership and ompound Company Business.

The subject of Closing and Re-opening Books Balancing and Adjusting Individual and Partnership concerns, will be explained and illustra ted.

In place of the common method of copying after any particular printed work, the pupil i-exercised in opening, making the Original En-tries, Journalizing, Posting, Balancing, Closing and making out the Balance Sheets of over twenty different sets of Books, containing En-tries in every variety of Mercantile Transactions—thus obtaining in a short time a more ex tensive knowledge of the science than could be equired for years in a Counting House.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild CHERRY.

Diseases of the Lungs and Breast! For the cure of all breast complaints, such as Ashma (or Phthisic) Coughs, incipient or scated Consumption. From Dr. Baker, Springfield, Washington county, Kentucky.

Messrs. Sanford & Park,

Springfield, Ky., May 14, 1845. GENTS .- I take this opportunity of informing you of a most remarkable cure performed up ne, by the use of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild

In the year of 1840 I was taken with an inflamation of the bowels, which I labored under for six weeks, when I gradually recovered. In the fall of 1841, I was attacked with a severe cold, which seated itself on my Lungs; and for the space of three years I was confined to my bed.— I tried all kinds of medicines, and every variety of medical aid without benefit; and thus wearied along until the winter of 1844, when heard of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

My friends persuaded me to give it a trial, though I had given up all hopes of recovery, and had prepared myself for the change of another world. Through their solicitations I was in duced to make use of the genuine Wistar's Bal-sam of Wild Cherry. The effect was truly as-tonishing. After five years affliction, pain and suffering; and after having spent four or five hundred dollars to no purpose, and the best and most respectable physicians had proved unavail-ing, I was soon restored to entire health by the plessing of God and the use of Dr. Wistar's

CURE YOUR COUGHS AND COLDS AND PREVENT CONSUMPTION! By Taking "Dr. Jackson's Compound Syrup of SASSAFRAS AND WILD CHERRY." THIS elegant preparation has established it self upon a solid foundation wherever i has been tried. It has no equal for the speed cure of Coughs, Colds and other effections of the ungs, Weakness and Pains in the breast, &c. &c. Amongst many certificates received fromthose who have used it, we will only extract a few. The Rev. G. G. Moore, Episcopal Minister t Paris Ky, writes to us as follows.

Paris, Ky. Oct. 6th 1845. Gentlemen, I am pleased to learn that you are about to send your valuable Compound Syrup of Sassafras and Wild Cherry to this place for sale. Having used it myself, and in my family for a year or two past, I am free to say, that in cases of Colds and Affections of the Lungs and CHEST, I have never known anything to equal it. You will certainly deserve the thanks of the Community, and particularly of these chandise, Calculations of per centage, Interest, afflicted with Cougus, for having provided such Commission, Exchange, Equation of Payments, a specific: 111 not the thing least to be desired n it, it 2 asant to the taste.

Yours very respectual G. G. MOORE. Certificate of Joseph Powell Esq. Having used the Compound Syrup of Sassafra and Wild Cherry in my family for more than two years in Colds and Coughs, I am fully preared to testify to its virtues. My son has been subject to the Croup for sev ral years, and frequently came near dying with t before I made use of this Syrup. Since using which, I can state with great pleasure to Parents generally, that he has been entirely relieved om every attack at the beginning, by simply aking one or two doses

I consider this Syrup invaluable in Colds and Coughs, and have never known it fail of curing he worst Case, when used in time. Indeed so valuable do I consider this Medicin that I would on no account suffer my family to be without it through the winter season. It nee only be tried to be appreciated.

J. W. POWELL, Covington, Ky Covington, October 7th, 1845. DRS. BENNETT & PRETLOW-I have ising the Compound Syrop of Sassafras & Wild Cherry in my family for more than a year, and and it all it purports to be; having always proved efficacious in my family whenever used as directed, in Coughs, Colds, &c., and it gives me pleasare to contribute my evidence in favor of it

In the case of a young man who was some time in my employ, its effects were truly woulderful! He had laboured under great weakness of the breast, loss of apppetite, Dyspepsia, Cough, and general debility, and was for weeks unable to attend to business. I prevailed on him to take this Syrup, which relieved him right away, and by the time he was through with the second pottle was restored to good health. It is now nore than a year and he has not been trouble ince with disease.

Yours &c., JOHN R. STEWART. Other references, and ample directions accom pany each bottle. The retail price is 50 cents per bottle. Agents will be supplied on favorable terms, by the proprietors.
